Bishop Joseph giving his blessing

Bishop Joseph Dae Yong Lee was born in 1943, the eldest son in a Presbyterian pastor's family. His active Christian life began in the Methodist church. He studied at Yon Sei University in Seoul. He worked tirelessly for the Korean Christian newspaper and as a communication officer of the Korean National Council of Churches, prior to his conversion to the Anglican Church in Korea.

He was a late convert to the Anglican Church being ordained in 1978 at the age of 36, and sent to Virginia Theological Seminary in USA for further training. He was the vicar of three parishes, two in Seoul and one in Onsuri, Kangwha Island. His administrative ability and skill were very much appreciated when he worked in the diocesan centre of Seoul Diocese.

He became Dean of the graduate school of Sungkonghoe University before he was elected to be the Bishop of Pusan.

His hobby is music and he made a positive contribution in the editing of the new Korean Hymn book. He is married and has a daughter.

THE QUEEN'S STATE VISIT TO THE REPUBLIC OF KOREA

〈국빈 방한하였던 엘리자베스 영국 여왕이 4월 22일 오전 서울주교좌성당을 방문하였다〉

Her Majesty paid a visit to St. Mary and St. Nicholas Anglican Cathedral during her visit to Korea on 22nd April 1999. Pictured from the left to right: Fr. Paul Kim (Rector & Dean of Seoul Cathedral Parish), Mr Mathia Choi (Chairman of the House of Laity, Brother in law of Fr. Tennant; Her Majesty; Archbishop of Seoul, and the Bishop of Pusan.

On the evening of 18th April 1999, Her Majesty The Queen and The Duke of Edinburgh departed from Heathrow Airport for Her Majesty's first State Visit to the Republic of Korea. The visit lasted four days, and everywhere The Queen received a rapturous welcome by huge and admiring crowds. Historians were conscious of the fact that the last survivor of the ancient Korean Royal Family, Princess Yi Pang Ja, died in 1989, aged 87. President Kim Dae Yung received The Queen and Prince Philip at the Blue House, Seoul, and later The Queen laid a wreath and cast three handfuls of incense into the eternal flame at the National Cemetery for war-dead and patriots. Later The Queen went to the Midong Elementary School, Seoul where 60 pupils put on an amazing display of "taekwondo" (a martial, acrobatic foot-art).

At the State Banquet, after a long day on April 20th, including a visit to Ewha Women's University (the world's largest female University); a visit to Seoul's Anglican Cathedral, where there is a replica of the Korean War Memorial in St. Paul's Cathedral which The Queen unveiled in 1987, and a walk-about in the famous Insa Dong shopping street, amidst immense crowds, Her Majesty had her first taste of ginseng! The 8 course meal began with fresh ginseng and cucumber with mustard sauce, eventually carried on to Casserole Skin-Sul-Ro and ended with Persimmon punch. During her Speech The Queen recalled the part played by the thousands of British servicemen and women in the Korean War, 1950-53, and the 1,087 fatal battle casualties.

On her 73rd Birthday The Queen visited An-dong Province where a masked dancer, who was celebrating also his 46th birthday, presented Her Majesty with a gold cup of rice-wine and toasted her in his gold cup: "Seang chin chuka hamnida" (Happy Birthday) among applauding crowds. Later The Queen visited Bon-Jong Buddhist Monastery to view the celebrated three golden Buddhas, and to autograph a ritual glazed roof-tile. That evening there was a great concert for The Queen in Seoul when a choir of Korean school-children sang an arrangement of "Happy Birthday to you", accompanied by our "Doncaster diva", Ms Lesley Garrett. The whole huge audience rose to give The Queen a long standing ovation: she was clearly very moved.

Eighty British Korean War Veterans were in Korea and The Queen was able to meet them assembled at the British Embassy with General Sir Anthony Farrar-Hockley (he had been a young Captain and Adjutant of The Glosters in Korea 1950/51, and then a p.o.w. with me until September 1953), who later accompanied Prince Philip to the front-line Security area, across the Imjin River which separates the North Korean forces from South Korea.

The visit was a huge success, including much to do with trade and economics after the collapse of 1997; the Duke of Edinburgh visiting a number of Korean engineering and technological centres, and meeting with The Queen prominent business leaders. The already strong bonds of the Republic of Korea with our country were greatly strengthened by this memorable visit.

Korean Anglican Church is growing steadily

The Diocese of Seoul is certainly growing. Now they have 84 active priests working in the diocese. They have recently started many mission churches in the diocese as well as a Retreat house and many houses of sharing for the needy.

New church was consecrated

Anjoong Church of the Holy Spirit was consecrated on 30th May by the Archbishop of Seoul. It took 3 years and 4 months to complete. As you know, they had an extra hardship due to the IMF crisis. This splendid building has a church, hall, dining room and office. This is a parish church where Fr. Tennant and Fr. Rutt used to work when they were missionaries in Korea.

A New Novice - Welcome

At the novice admission ceremony on March 16 I left the postulancy and began life as a novice. My family and fellow students from Sungkonghoe University along with church members from Anyang Church and elsewhere attended the ceremony and extended their congratulations. At the ceremony I entered the novitiate but I feel a little unease as if I haven't prepared sufficiently for the religious life. I thank the people who gave their congratulations in my admission as a novice and ask for their concern and prayers that I may really become a friar.

I have also started studying in the Graduate School of Theology at Sungkonghoe University. Seminary students as a rule live in the university dormitory, but with the university's permission I am living at the friary while studying at the university. In this new environment of religious and student life I promise with a thankful heart to do my best.

Third Order

The Secular Franciscan Order (also called Third Order) is a group of people who feel that they are called in some way to learn from St. Francis and his following of the gospel of Jesus Christ. So far we have two groups of people who want to learn more about St Francis and about a Franciscan understanding of their lives and ministries. We are meeting monthly in Seoul and Kumi and beginning to reflect on the life of Francis and its meaning for us today. One of their questions seems to be how to connect their daily lives; their ministries and their spirituality. We hope the Secular Franciscan Order can help with their search.
